Morehouse College is the only all male, historically black degree-granting institution in the world, and according to the National Science Foundation, is the leading producer of black, male doctoral candidates. In particular, Morehouse is the number one producer of black, male Ph.D’s in life sciences, physical sciences, humanities and education. Thus, Morehouse’s capabilities on dealing with minorities in STEAM related fields and beyond is proven and continues to grow. In addition, our Morehouse Research Institute (“MRI”) is set to become the leading think tank around all issues facing black males in the U.S. and abroad. Morehouse has amassed a selection of scholars with deep expertise and knowledge on the development, growth and success of black males, coupled with the campus environment, we are uniquely positioned to opine, explore and impact issues facing black males.
